SEASONAL TROUBLES OR JUST SATANISTS, AGAIN?

'Just a buncha fuckin' thieves' — Bruno Landers, Owner, Pennsauken Pool

Lance Altruist,
Pennsauken, NJ

The first week of summer ended on a dour note for local pool-operator Bruno Landers. The body of a local boy William Buckley was found floating face first in the Pennsauken Pool early Saturday, June 15th.

"This kid was breakin' in to steal shit — I know it." Bruno Landers indicated they'd found evidence of attempts to break into the pool's snackbar.

The boy's parents, Mr. Gerald and Mrs. Amber Buckley, declined to comment.

It isn't the first for our local town to be the site of local hoodlum violence. Just last month, Ted's Sheds for Lawn Maintenance Aficionados was broken into. Several of the aforementioned sheds were opened and looked at without proper salesmen being in attendance.

Local religious zealot Susan Gandolfini had this to say about the rampant corruption of our youth: "Fuck Atari. Fuck television. Fuck beer and wine and cigarettes. All these things, my children, all of them are corrupting our youth and turning them into filthy little Satanists." She then flipped us the bird and drove off on her Vespa.

Police presence remained on-site for most of the weekend and is expected to stay present into the week. Sheriff Brock Johnston has this to say when asked for comment: "We definitely see evidence of tam-

Explosion rocks Pennsauken Shores

Residents of Pennsauken Shores reported an explosion heard late Sunday, June 17th. Some residents said they felt like it'd come from the direction of the Whitmoore chemical plant.

"It was like 'boom' then it was like 'shakey' shakey'. Resident of Pennsauken Shores Douglas J. Looseteeth was adamant that it came from the northeast, the direction of the local Whitmoore Chemical location.

When asked for comment, Whitmoore representative Lou Gre-pering at the snackbar door, but the, uh, state of the boy seems alarming for reasons we can't really share at this ghorn stated that they maybe experienced a violent explosion of a nitrogen tank last night but it was nothing to worry about. He concluded the brief interview by suggesting everyone just buy some Aquabeam and move the fuck on.■

Residents Report Major Sewer Issues

Karen Alberger,
Pennsauken, NJ

Residents of Hollinsched Avenue and River Road reported severe sewer issues throughout the weekend.

"I can't shit in this sewer economy!" Local Janet Gravens reported she had to drive up to the 7-11 to use their toilet. "Couldn't flush — couldn't shower. Could barely run the sinks!"

Local utilities engineers blamed sewer overuse from the opening of the summer season and the draining of Pennsauken pool.

moment." He then playfully splashed a local woman and had to go rejoin his game of Marco Polo.

Regardless of the situation at hand, Bruno assures us the pool is staying open "It's fuckin' saging open! Don't let your dumb-fuck children who can't fucking swim to break in overnight and maybe they won't fucking drown. Idiots." We among the Pennsauken Times staff agree.■
